

The Karten CTEC Centre

The Karten CTEC Centre
Computer-aided Training Education & Communication

- The Karten Centre runs courses to help adults use new technology, computers and the internet.
- The skills that people learn can support them in their everyday lives. This means that they can learn to have more independence.

Computers and technology can help with everyday activities. With computer-aided courses, The Karten CTEC Centre can offer adults with learning disabilities the chance to reach their full potential.

A range of courses are available, with specialist technology and software to help students access a computer in a way that suits their needs.

- Internet and email
- Produce Word documents
- English and Maths
- Topical discussions
- Life skills
- Use a digital camera
- Make choices
- Communicate using the computer
- Use a switch and mouse control
- Cause and effect
- Make photo stories

Students attending our courses benefit from increased concentration, enhanced communication and social skills. Computers and technology can be used to support activities such as travel, preparing meals and communication which increases independence and promotes dignity and choice.
