

Pamela Barnett Centre

Her Majesty The Queen, Norwood's Patron opened The Pamela Barnett Centre a new home for 16 adults with profound and multiple learning disabilities at Ravenswood in Berkshire.

The opening took place on Thursday 11 December 2008, when The Queen visited Ravenswood to meet residents and staff and was shown around The Pamela Barnett Centre where she unveiled a plaque.

The new Centre is one of two new state-of-the-art homes built with funds generously donated to Norwood. It provides four small homes for 16 people with profound and multiple learning disabilities. Each person is supported with a tailored programme of lifestyle and leisure opportunities utilising Ravenswood and community based resources, together with therapies which enhance their independence rather than restrict their quality of life.

Adjacent to the Pamela Barnett Centre, The Tager Centre will provide purpose-built, self contained accommodation for people on the autistic spectrum with high levels of need, requiring specialist care and support.
