

Family Support Team - Children

Work may focus on the uniqueness of bringing a new baby into the world, through to the 'terrible' twos and upwards to the complexities of living with teenagers. Cases of bullying, low self-esteem, family crisis, and personal loss or peer group pressure feature high in the work undertaken.

Our Family Support team will assist all family members through issues such as abuse, bereavement, divorce and separation.

In all cases, those seeking support have direct access to our team making the advice, care and support as responsive as possible.

Where we cannot help a person directly, our social workers will act as advocates, ensuring a person receives the right services from whoever can help.

We are also able to provide some limited financial support for individuals or families in need.
